“UGA was the first environment I felt safe to express myself openly and, yes, openness can be scary but you can find community at UGA.”

-Asher Blake

“My advice...check out the student organizations and groups on-campus. It’s a great way to make friends and find your place on campus.”

-Sean Umbehant

“Reach out and visit The Center soon in college. I really wish I had been involved since freshmen year instead of my senior year.”

-Logan Riddle

“If the event is free, go to it. You may leave with a free meal, t-shirt, phone charger, or a new friend. Also, get to know your professors outside the classroom; go to office hours or schedule one on one meetings. It’ll help in the long run.”

-TJ Johnson

“Know that you will not be alone because there are a number of people to connect with; you just have to put yourself out there a little.”

-Ses Real

“The first year can be intimidating. Get out of your comfort zone and try out different organizations and activities to find community in things you enjoy.”

-Madeline Siegel

“Don’t use ‘RateMyProfessor’ as a precedent for professors, lol”

-Adrian Gallant
